Cambodia Vote Set By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A weary Senate reached agreement Thursday to end its seven-week debate on Cambodia, scheduling a vote for the very day President Nixon has pledged to withdraw all U.S. forces from that Asian nation.

An agreement that final votes will be held next Tuesday came after Republicans moved to increase a growing tactical advantage by introducing themselves a tough antiwar amendment they are confident can be beaten.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, who has held the Senate in day and night sessions this week in an effort to clear up a mounting backlog of legislation, announced the agreement.

He said the $300 million foreign military sales bill, vehicle for the prolonged debate that began hours after the April invasion of Cambodia, would come to a final vote at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

This will follow by two hours a final vote on the battered Cooper-Church amendment which is aimed at blocking use of funds for any Cambodian combat without prior consultation with Congress.

Although half a dozen amendments remain to be acted on, including one by Assistant Republican Leader Robert P. Griffin that goes to the heart of the Nixon doctrine, Mansfield said a one-hour limit on debate on each had been agreed to.

This agreement, however, did not cover the antiwar amendment introduced Thursday by Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., who made it clear that his sole intention in bringing the proposal up is to see it killed.

The Allott amendment originally was introduced weeks ago by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and George S. McGovern, D-S.D.

Air Pollution Law Claims Court Win

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas air pollution law was challenged Thursday for the first time in an appeals court and the law won.

The ruling by the First Court of Civil Appeals, in effect, affirms the legality of the Texas

President Vincent Glorioso then quipped, "Let's hope that industry Mr. Schriever was talking about will locate there."

Also speaking to the council Thursday night was Texas City Councilman Bill Thompson.

Thompson asked the council for its assistance in upgrading the quality of movies shown in Texarkana. He said he is planning trips to Austin and Washington, D.C., to "fight through the supreme court if necessary," to rid the city of dirty movies.

"We don't like the word 'make'," he said, "I don't like the word 'make', but we are going to ask the local theaters to refrain from showing these movies.

"Help us pray for us," Thompson asked. "We don't want it to happen in Texarkana, but it is happening in Texarkana."

Clean Air Act and the authority of the Texas Air Control Board. "It was the first test of the Texas pollution law before a higher court," Assistant County Atty. James R. Doxey said.

The court upheld a lower court's temporary injunction against boxcar burning by Byer's Barge Terminal of Houston.

Byer's attorney had sought to have the state air law declared unconstitutional, and argued that air pollution control has been pre-empted by the federal government.

The court also rejected these points and also Byer's contention that the air law definition of pollution is indefinite and that the air board's regulation against outdoor burning is too vague.

"The science of air pollution control is new and inexact, and these standards are difficult to devise, but if they are to be effective they must be broad," the ruling stated. "If they are too precise they will provide easy escape for those who wish to circumvent the law."

Byer's attorney said he did not know yet if the ruling will be appealed.

Citizens For Decent Literature Set Meet

A proposed course of action to be taken by citizens opposing obscenity in literature and in movies will be the major item on the agenda of a Citizens for Decent Literature meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary of the Highland Park Baptist Church, 3601 Hazel St., Monday.

Rev. E.J. Kearney, pastor of Highland Park Church, said that the meeting has been called as a result of City Attorney Leon Pesek's opinion that no ordinance could be written banning obscenity in movies and on newsstands in Texarkana, in light of the Supreme Court's recent rulings on obscenity.

City Attorney Pesek stated the opinion last Monday at a Texarkana City Council meeting in which proposals were made for legislation banning obscenity in movies and on newsstands in Texarkana. The council took no action on the proposal.

Constitution In Tabloid Form Prepared

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Secretary of State Kelly Bryant praised "the cooperative spirit" of the state's newspapers and announced Thursday completion of plans for distribution of the official copies of the proposed new state constitution.

The proposed charter, to be voted upon in the general election Nov. 3, was drafted to supplant the document which the state adopted 96 years ago.

The announcement by Bryant signalled that he and his staff, after six months of work on publication and distribution of the document, had reached the downhill side of their labors with the constitution.

Legal advertisements of the proposal, as required by law, are to be published Friday in the Arkansas Gazette and the Arkansas Democrat.

Bids are to be opened in Bryant's office at 10 a.m. July 17 on the contract for printing 825,000 copies of the proposed charter, and the printed document is to be distributed as an eight-page tabloid supplement to newspaper in the third week in August.

The General Assembly appropriated about $156,000 to pay costs of printing and distributing the proposal.

Sabine Development Program Outlined

LONGVIEW, Tex. (AP) — Representatives of the U.S. Corps of Engineers outlined an extensive plan Thursday for the Sabine River development program.

The engineers spoke in the last of a series of public hearings on the proposal.

The program recommends multi-purpose reservoirs at Mineola, Lake Fork and Big Sandy in East Texas and a flood protection project at Greenville.

Another proposal is a 5.3-mile navigation project from Echo to Morgan Bluff.

Col. R. S. Kristoferson of the Fort Worth district of the Corps of Engineers said the entire proposal would cost an estimated $182.2 million with annual maintenance costs of $1.46 million.

He said 180 miles of previously proposed flood control release channels extending below the reservoirs could be deleted by increasing the flood control capabilities of the three reservoirs.

Elimination of the flood channels below the reservoirs would cause less disturbance to the environment and ecology, Kristoferson said.

A 1985 completion date has been set for the reservoirs and flood control and navigation projects.

EDA Approves Grant For Training

The Texarkana based Northeast Texas Economic Development District Inc. has received approval for a grant of $165,000 to assist in the training of 30 disadvantaged persons for non-Federal public service careers, Congressman Wright Patman of Texarkana said Thursday.

Patman said the Economic Development Administration approved the grant. Counties in northeast Texas included in the development district are Bowie, Camp, Cass, Delta, Franklin, Harrison, Hopkins, Lamar, Marion, Morris, Panola, Red River, Titus, Upshur and Wood.

Other Texas development districts also received grants, included the Central Texas Economic Development District, Waco, $180,000 for training 30 persons; Coastal Bend Economic Development District, Corpus Christi, $165,000, 70 persons; and the Lower Rio Grande Valley Development Council, McAllen, $120,000, 70 persons.

The EDA approved $4,715,000 in grants to train a total of 2,810 persons.
